Why choose the Executive MBA?

Designed for students from all disciplinary backgrounds

This two-year part-time programme has been specially designed for leaders who want to further their education without leaving their employers or business. While it demands real commitment, we understand the time pressures students may face. The programme is organised to limit face-to-face time conveniently in block modules – approximately once every month. Students will find yourself developing throughout the two years, ensuring their on-going career advancement in the years after.

Our current EMBA student body is a diverse class with students from Ghana, Nigeria, Lebanon, Ivory Coast and Canada, typically with more than seven years of prior work experience.

Consultancy Challenge Elective

An exciting elective option on the EMBA programme, this involves a one-week group consultancy intervention for a client organisation. It gives you scope to test out your new knowledge and skills in an unfamiliar environment, thus helping to embed your learning from the programme as a whole. A preparatory workshop, held before you meet your client, introduces you to some of the key consultancy skills and tools.

Work Based Assignments

After each of the modules, you complete a practical, work-focused assignment, where you apply and evaluate some of the theories you have just learnt, effectively acting as an internal consultant and generating actionable recommendations for your organisation. Covering all areas of business operations – from strategy and marketing to operations and finance – this work will engage you with all parts of your own organisation.

The assignments allow you to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of the concepts and theories you have been introduced to. Most importantly, you will be able to apply these to real business situations.

Dissertation

Designed to consolidate your learning over the past two years, the dissertation is the capstone of your Executive MBA.

The final element is an in-depth reflective essay. For this you are asked to reflect on your experience, and your EMBA journey to distil your principles for leading and managing people. This clarifies what you believe are the most important elements of your leadership – what you believe in that you want to communicate to others through your decisions, actions and behaviours. Your dissertation will be an exploration of the theory and practice of these principles.

Throughout the reflective dissertation you are supported by an academic tutor and a tutor group with your peers, although there is expected to be a high degree of self-directed learning for this piece of work.

Studying at Lancaster University Management School, where I have had the chance to interact with different people across different industries and different perspectives has broadened my horizon and contributed to my personal growth as a manager. It was difficult returning to the classroom, and I was worried about combining it with a demanding job. However, the programme has boosted my confidence and learning. The Lancaster EMBA is more than an academic programme; it has been an experience. Applying has been one of the best decisions I have made.
